The reporter met Tandie at his home. Tandie's dress was not very beautiful, but her home was nice.

Tandie's mother earned 2000 dollars a month, and she had four kids. They didn't know if Tandie could afford to buy the ticket, a dress, shoes, and a limousine. Tandie got permission to sell candy at school to make money. She managed to get all the money she needed by herself.

Tandie felt great when she got her hair done. Going to the prom was important to Tandie because she wanted to meet a boy there. It was also important because she would be the first in her family to finish college.

On the day of the prom, it was snowing. Her mother was jealous of Tandie. Tandie stepped into the mud and ruined her shoes. There were a lot of people waiting for the students in front of the hotel. People were not impressed by Tandie's dress because it looked cheap. The students took taxis to Cape Town. Nobody could have guessed what would happen that night. Tandie said she felt like a princess. The reporter said this was what Tandie wanted her future to be.
