The image shows a wide, dimly lit underground passage in the Wieliczka Salt Mine. The ceiling is made of rough-hewn rock, and the walls are also natural rock, with some sections featuring relief carvings. The floor is paved with stone tiles. Several large, ornate chandeliers hang from the ceiling, casting a warm glow. Numerous tourists are walking through the passage, some looking at the walls. On the left, there is a wooden walkway with a railing. The overall atmosphere is historical and somewhat somber due to the underground setting.
