I'm in an English specialised class. This means that I have more English lessons a week than others in my class.

I grab every opportunity to improve my English. I usually read graded books and I often watch series in English without subtitle.

In English lessons we learn a lot of words and grammar and we speak a lot in specialised class.

I'm satisfied with that kind of teaching, but it can be better if we spoke more in the not specialised lesson too. I think we need to do more listening exercises and play some situations in English.
