Metsämyyrä Kindergarten in Kausala, Finland

2. What was your first impression about the work place? How were you welcomed? How was the atmosphere/work climate during your work experience? How did they introduce you the work place/premises? Were the workers busy? Was the atmosphere busy? ***

I was welcomed very friendly. It was very pleasant and nice. The atmosphere was very calm and alive, because of the kids. They introduced me by giving me a little tour through the kindergarten and I got to know the names of everyone, including the children. The workers were busy with their work, but didn't really look like it. They looked really calm and they were occupied with the kids.

3. Which qualifications did the workers need for their work? What kind of education was required to work there? ***

To work in a kindergarten one has to graduate at the nursery school, meaning they have to be a nanny. With this level of education you can either work as a nanny or as a nurse in a hospital.

4. Were there rules about clothing? Was there business confidentiality? *

There were no rules about clothing except that we had to be without shoes indoors, the children and the workers get to wear something like house shoes.

5. Did the workers get fringe benefits like a company phone/free calls, lunch, a work canteen, a gym? *

The workers get to eat the same food as the children on their lunch or snack breaks.

6. What were your tasks at work? What did you do exactly? *

I was playing with the children and watching what the workers have planned with the children. I was preparing some crafts for the children and helping them put on their jackets and beanies to go outside. We also went outside with them to the playground and when we came back I helped them take off the winter jackets and other clothing items they have to wear to play outside.

They worked very well together, everyone has a little group of children they take care of, meaning they had all the work divided, so it was easy for them to handle all the kids.
