1. What helps graduates (to) stand out in the labour/job market?
2. Do you think it's more important to acquire skills that can be applied to many jobs/professions than to focus on being excellent at one thing?
3. Which graduates have the highest unemployment rates and which are easily employable?
4. Which industries do you believe will have the largest increase in vacancies in the next 10 years and why?
5. What would you be willing to do to enhance your employability if your degree wasn't enough/sufficient?
